

WATSON TO URGE HARDING TO FREE REDS FROM JAIL

Says Most of the Prisoners
Should Never Have Been Sentenced.

Senator Tom Watson, of Georgia, is preparing to introduce a resolution asking President Harding to liberate the hundred so-called political prisoners from jail.

Watson believes that most of them never should have been sentenced. Now, with the peace treaty ratified, he argues, there is no reason for the continued punishment.

"Men who had opinions and dared to express them, should not have been confined simply because their opinions were not those of the majority, when they did not incite lawlessness. Eugene Debs and scores of others simply expressed an opinion, he said.

Repeated Watson's Speech.
"David T. Boddgett, of Iowa, was sent to Atlanta for ten years because he repeated in his State a part of a speech I made in Thomson, Ga., where I live. The gist of that speech was that the conscription of the American soldier to send him abroad was unconstitutional and always had been so unconstitutional and always had been so unconstitutional of Great Britain. He was sent to the penitentiary, and I to the Senate."

While the Federal government did not send him to jail, Watson said, it nevertheless barred from the mails two periodicals which he published. This, he contended, was wrong, a contention which he now believes has been justified.

Says War Benefits Bankers.
Watson said the war was not for ideals as the people were told, but for the benefit of international bankers and other interests. His resolution, he said, would be offered when a favorable opportunity arose in the Senate.

"Imprisonment of the political prisoners is a denial of the right of free speech," he declared.

AMERICAN WOMEN FLEE GERMAN HOTEL

BERLIN, Oct. 21. — Threatened with violence by the employees of the Kaiserhof Hotel, and after a week of worry and fear, Mrs. William R. Shepard, the wife of a professor of history in Columbia University, and Mrs. Pauline Fleischman, who is a sister-in-law of Samuel Untermyer, were forced to flee from the hotel.

Mrs. Shepard, who appealed to the Herald representative for aid in finding lodging, says her experience is no different from those of hundreds of other Americans and foreigners visiting in Berlin.

The hotel strike has been intensified, and the hotel owners are determined to break the employees' union which is demanding increased wages with the abolition of tips. Inasmuch as almost no publicity has been given to the strike in Europe, hundreds of Americans continue to arrive in Berlin, and they cannot find hotel accommodations. Some hotels, upon special pleas, permit Americans to camp out in their rooms.

Mrs. Shepard lived for a week without food, light or heat at the Kaiserhof. Frequently bands of strikers invaded the rooms threatening the guests. In one riot several persons were badly beaten, and most of the men guests fled. Mrs. Shepard and Mrs. Fleischman were unable to find rooms, and so continued staying at the Kaiserhof until yesterday's visit by strikers made their position untenable.

Irish Firm Asks Injunction.

The Cantrell & Cochrane Company, Ltd., an Irish concern with headquarters at Belfast and Dublin, which invaded the soft drink market in the United States in 1917, filed suit yesterday in the District Supreme Court to prevent further alleged infringement of its trademark for ginger ale bottles by the Abner-Drury Company, a local soft-drink and brewing firm. The local company was ordered by Justice Hoehling to appear on October 28 and show cause why the injunction preventing further manufacture of this ginger ale should not issue.

BANKERS HOLD KEY TO WORLD PEACE, LECTURER STATES

Trade Expert Says International Financiers Control Situation.

The future peace of the world depends not so much on the forthcoming conference on the limitation of armaments as upon the great banking interests, which can more effectively check the international war hounds than any other human agency, Dr. William F. Notz, chief of the export trade division of the Federal Trade Commission, declared last night before the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

"Today the eyes of the world are turned towards New York and Washington," Dr. Notz said. "They sound the financial keynote of the day."

"At this very moment the representatives of the leading nations of the world are preparing to come to the New World on an errand of mercy. Millions of war-weary hearts are centered on that conference. Will their hopes and prayers be realized or shattered? As these ambassadors approach the shores of the New World there will loom up before their eyes the giant Statue of Liberty. Shall it be a good, an auspicious omen? Not through the decrees of international courts, nor the acts of parliament and legislators, but with the aid of the most powerful factor in international affairs today, a factor in whose power it rests to provide the sinews of war or to withhold them, a factor which can more effectively checkmate the international war hounds than any other human agent—the international banker."
